

YFHS Policy 6: Supporting gender diverse young people

Agreed On: Date (last updated by)

To be reviewed by: Final staff meeting before YFHS 2027

This policy is taken from Quakers in Britain's Event & Activity Management Policy Procedures & Guidance 24 'Supporting Gender Diverse young people'. (This procedure applies to all Britain Yearly Meeting centrally managed work with children and young people)

Introduction

As a Quaker body we are committed to our testimony of equality and believe there is that of God in everyone. We accept everybody irrespective of how they choose to identify and present themselves. (Yearly Meeting Gathering 2017 minute 38 refers)

In recent years at Quaker youth events there is increasing gender diversity. In order to respond to the needs of young people who attend these events it is necessary to consider the best ways to support their needs. All young Quakers have an equal right to participate in Quaker events and experience belonging in their Quaker community. It is important to ensure young people are not prevented from participating based on their gender needs.

Equality Act 2010: This act protects gender variant and trans children and young people with the protected characteristic of gender reassignment. This applies to anyone who is undergoing, has undergone or is proposing to undergo a process of reassigning their sex. For this to apply, they do not have to be undergoing a medical procedure to change their sex, but are proposing to take active steps to transition socially.

So far, the law has not acknowledged non-binary or genderless individuals, but the Women & Equality Committee Report (January 2015) has mentioned these identities. In the interest of best practice, it is recommended to take steps to be inclusive of all gender identities. For example, refer to "all genders" instead of "both genders".

Children can realise at a young age that they don't feel comfortable with their assigned gender. It is important to listen to the child, be supportive and be guided by them. Creating an environment that celebrates diversity and avoids promoting rigid gender stereotypes enables, all children to feel able to express their true identity. The most important thing is for the child to feel accepted for who they are.

We have a responsibility in ensuring all those in our care are safe and supported to reach their full potential.

Creating a Safe Space

The Equality Act should be taken into account when supporting all participants. In terms of gender variant and trans participants, those working with children and young people must involve them in all decisions. It is important to note that these needs will vary, and there is no one-size-fits-all approach in providing support. However, the support given must be consistent.

Integral to this is putting the best interests of the person at the core. Ensure all staff and volunteers are informed about and develop confidence in understanding gender and trans presentation, terminology and vocabulary e.g. correct use of pronouns, and in challenging gender stereotypes, sexism and transphobia.

Some useful tools that help people understand gender as a spectrum are <https://itspronouncedmetrosexual.com/2012/03/the-genderbread-person-v2-0/> or <http://www.transstudent.org/gender>.

They can also be beneficial for supporting families and participants, particularly if they already understand autism as a spectrum for example. There are different understandings and some people see gender in a more fluid way than a spectrum or binary definition.

Those working with children and young people cannot rely on them stating that they are 'trans', as younger children may not use this term. It may become apparent through use of other language, words or behaviour that their gender identity doesn't match the gender assigned to them. Words and phrases can include "feeling different", stating that they are a boy or girl, using a different name, becoming distressed when asked to do something in line with their perceived gender, for example when using girls toilets or lining up with boys etc.

Some children and young people will have already spoken with their parents or guardians about their feelings before anyone else is made aware of their gender identity. However, sometimes the child or young person may disclose to a member of staff or volunteer prior to speaking with family members. So be prepared to respond appropriately to a wide variety of situations.

All discussions with parents or guardians should be carried out with the young person's knowledge and consent. The young person's needs should be central with a view to supporting them during any proposed transition. Every family is different and within them each individual will have their own personal experiences. There may be very different responses from family members – be aware that there may be a wide range of knowledge, understanding and feelings. You may encounter attitudes or beliefs which you find personally challenging. In each situation it is important to stay focused on the needs of the young person without being judgemental or confrontational. Families may need signposting to sources of support, you might direct them the organisations who work with families.

Do not inform other parents or guardians about a participant's transition as this is confidential information. However it is best practice to prepare a response to use for parents or guardians who do get in contact with concerns or questions. At no point should the young person be named nor should any information be shared which might identify them.

If parents or guardians raise concerns about their child using a shared toilet or communal accommodation with a gender diverse participant, the purpose of the conversation should be to seek positive outcomes for all the children / young people affected. Perhaps exploring with those involved the first two paragraphs of this document, using the paragraph below:

We accept everybody irrespective of how they choose to identify and present themselves. Accommodation Arrangements:

- Accommodation is provided in two blocks and is therefore broadly split by gender YFHS will seek to provide for both gender diverse and cis gendered participants. Discussions will be had with participants on a case-by-case basis to ensure that the accommodation they are most comfortable with can be provided, and if they are sharing a room with others that they feel safe and comfortable with this.
- A young person who is gender diverse or exploring their gender may approach the staff to discuss sleeping arrangements. If a participant is under 18 and wishes to share a room with participants of a different sex to that which they were assigned at birth we will seek permission from them to confirm this arrangement with their parent/guardian as well as the parents or guardian of the young people they will be sharing with. If permission to contact parents is not given, or parents refuse permission we will find a solution on a case by case basis, such as offering an individual room.

Toilets:

- A young person should be able to use the facilities that they have chosen and feel comfortable using. If a participant is uncomfortable sharing, then they should be provided with alternative individual facilities or arrangements. Ensure there are suitable toilets available that have menstruation management facilities such as bins.

Names and pronouns:

- Ask the young person which name and pronoun they would prefer and respect their wishes. Many Trans/Non-Binary people choose to use a gender neutral pronoun such as "they". It is important to respect the person's choice.
- Space will be left on name badges for participants to identify their preferred pronoun so that this can be easily communicated to others.
- On application forms we will ask for both the legal name and preferred name.

Referrals:

If there are concerns about the safety of a child or young person the safeguarding policy should be followed.

If there are concerns about their wellbeing where they might benefit from further support the following organisations are experienced in supporting trans people:
